Two counts of murder

Jury indicts Dublin woman

OAKLAND — The Alameda County Grand Jury Thursday indicted Helga A. Barte on two counts of murder following Wednesday's surprise move by District Attorney Stacey Walthall which took the case from a planned preliminary hearing in Livermore Municipal Court and moved it to the jurisdiction of County Superior Court.

Bail for the 36 year old German-born housewife was increased from the $50,000 imposed by Judge John A. Lewis of Livermore to $100,000.

Mrs. Barte, a German citizen, is charged with the Dec. 6 murder of her two children, Nicole, one day shy of her first birthday, and Craig, her six year old son.

Walthall would only candidly comment that he "thought the case was best handled in Superior Court."

Mrs. Barte would have been present at the Jan. 30 Livermore court appearance, and it has been speculated that the gruesome recapitulation of the incidents of that morning might have been too traumatic for the woman, now held at Napa State Hospital.

She will, however, be present Monday, Jan. 13, at 9:30 a.m. for arraignment in Department 5 of Superior Court.

Attorney Albert J. Wax, appointed from the Public Defender's office, had entered a plea of "not guilty" in Livermore court.

To further add to Mrs. Barte's burden, her husband, William, a cost analyist with Lucky Stores headquarters division in Dublin, filed Dec. 31, for dissolution of their eight year marriage.

Mr. Barte is being represented by Oakland Attorney John B. Rest, who stated that to his knowledge the divorce papers had been delievered to the Napa County Sheriff's Department. He did not know, however, if Mrs. Barte had been served.

On her first two appearances before Judge Lewis' bench, Mrs. Barte asked if she might call her husband. In granting her two phone calls at her first appearance, Judge Lewis noted that she might use one to call her husband.

She asked again at her second appearance if she might call her husband, and it is not known whether or not she has yet contacted him.

The Public Defender's office is precluded from representing Mrs. Barte in the divorce proceedings, and the German Consul in San Francisco will not interfere in the civil matter.

According to the Alameda County Sheriff's Department, Mrs. Barte called them at 8:29 that Friday morning and told them she had just killed her two children in their Dublin home.

The police found Nicole drowned in the bathtub and Craig in the bedroom, stabbed through the neck.

Mrs. Barte was taken to Santa Rita Rehabilitation Center from which she was transferred to Napa State Hospital.

Candidates agree!. . .to meet again

By PAT WIDDER

DUBLIN — About the only issue four 15th Assembly District candidates' and representatives of four additional candidates could agree on Thursday at a meeting called to discuss campaign regulations was that another meeting should be held.

The meeting was originally called by candidate Guy Puccio (R-Castro Valley) but was chaired by representatives of the Hayward area League of Women Voters.

In addition to Puccio, Joyce LeClaire (D-Pleasanton), George Glavor (D-Hayward) and Thomas Kendall (D-Hayward) were present and Josh Jelincic (D-Hayward), Doug Morrison (D-Hayward), George Oakes (R-Hayward) and Bill Vandenburg (D-Hayward) sent representatives. The other seven candidates were not represented.

Puccio had proposed limiting campaign expenditures for the Feb. 4 special election to $15,000 and limiting individual and group contributions to $500 and $5,000 respectively. He also proposed establishment of a Local Interim Fair Campaign Practices Commission (LIFCPC) to review campaign literature.

The purpose of the meeting was to elicit a pledge from each candidate that he or she would abide by those rules. After amending several sections of the pledge, however, the candidates and their representatives agreed a second meeting would be required. That session was scheduled for 8 a.m. Wednesday, Jan. 15, at Lyon's Restaurant in Hayward.

A representative of the California Fair Political Practices Commission created when the Political Reform Act of 1974 was approved by voters in June will be asked to attend.

Harvey Hukari, representing George Oakes, said he believed establishment of a local commission would be "superfluous since Proposition 9 (Political Reform Act of 1974) has gone into effect. Why should we impose another set of regulations?" he asked.

Hukari also noted the state Fair Political Practices commissioners have been selected and "we ought to give Proposition 9 a chance to work."

Busto, representing Puccio, said they may have been appointed but the commission is "not operational" and he added certain restrictions included in Puccio's proposal are not included in Proposition 9.

The main argument at Thursday's two-hour session revolved around whether the LIFCPC was necessary since a statewide commission exists and, if it is established, what power it should be given.

As proposed, the local commission, upon determination a piece of campaign literature was slanderous, would notify the candidate who was distributing the material and then make its position public.

Oakes' and Vandenburgh's representatives were concerned with the lack of an appeal process and believed any decision of the local commission, if established, should be appealable to the state board before any position is made public.

Hukari again emphasized that, since the state commission "will be using this campaign as a laboratory experiment" for Proposition 9, this whole thing is a bit superfluous."

Glavor disagreed that the local commission should have to check with the state commission and Morrison's representative said he believed representatives of a local commission would "be in a better place to check on the authenticity" of statements made by candidates.

Following much discussion, LeClaire said she had not heard any proposal that is really workable." The important thing, she added, is to "insure no one candidate is unduly maligned or censured."

Garbage Service proposal

Transfer site okayed

PLEASANTON — Although doubts were expressed about the location of the transfer station proposed by Pleasanton Garbage Service, the planning commission unanimously approved pre-zoning and a conditional use permit for that station Wednesday night.

PGS is proposing to construct the transfer station on its 23-acre Vineyard Avenue site. That site is currently being used as the Pleasanton garbage dump but capacity at the dump will run out in six to eight months.

Three residents expressed opposition to the proposed transfer station site and Livermore Planning Director George Musso also questioned the route the trucks would use to get from that site to the Vasco Road dump site in Livermore.

Bill Hirst, representing the garbage firm, said he was in agreement with the 11 conditions attatched to the conditional use permit and noted the transfer station will actually result in a net decrease of traffic. Although the two to three trucks a day traveling to Livermore will "result in a negligible increase," he said, "it seems to me that increase will be considerably more than offset by the fact that heavy construction debris will no longer be accomodated at the Vineyard Avenue site.

Speaking in opposition to the proposed transfer station, Bud Martin of Crellin Road said many residents along Vineyard "have expected the phase-out of the garbage site." He also expressed concern that the use on that site might create the possibility "of other related uses in an area ill-suited for any industry other than agriculture." Martin asked the commission to consider a more suitable location in industrially zoned land near Interstate 580.

Musso, while admitting the "issue is a local matter", said the Livermore City Council has expressed concern about the routing of trucks to Vasco Road along Highway 84 and Holmes Street.

Musso also admitted since the trucks would be covered, their cargo would be indiscernible, and they "would not be unlike the thousands of trucks that go through Livermore everyday." He added, however, the Livermore council believes there are "other locations for the transfer station."

Responding to those concerns, Hirst emphasized, "We are not talking about three trucks a minute or three trucks an hour but about two to three trucks a day." He added the garbage firm is not "wedded to any particular route."

The commission also made the finding that a (plant) nursery is a conditional use in the industrial park zone. That finding will allow Casa Verde Nursery on Sunol Boulevard to proceed with purchase of additional adjacent land to expand its operations.

Walt Wood to lead planning commission

PLEASANTON — Walt Wood, who has served on the Pleasanton Planning Commission since 1970, was unanimously elected chairman of that body Wednesday night.

Roger McLain, who has served on the commission for two years, was elected vice chairman. He is a design technician at the Lawrence Livermore Laboratory.

Wood's first act as the new chairman was to make appointments to the Design Review Board and Board of Adjustments. The latter body will become defunct in several months after the Board of Appeals is activated.

Wood appointed Bud Garrigan as chairman of the Design Review Board with Roger McLain and Bob Butler as members. McLain will serve as chairman of the Board of Adjustments with Gregg Doherty and Wood as members.

Valley hospital

'71 report on expansion proving prophetic

By PAT KENNEDY

LIVERMORE — In 1971, the Lester Gorseline Associates planning firm first suggested that Valley Memorial Hospital might be only the first of a network of two hospitals and four health care centers in the Valley.

Now, four years later, the first health care center (in San Ramon) is ending its first year of operation. Plans for a second hospital (in Pleasanton) are underway. And the words of the Gorseline Report, written back in 1971, are strangely prophetic:

To be implemented, the plan needs the support of the board and medical staff, the various communities in the Valley pnd the Comprehensive Health Planning Councils (of Alameda and Contra Costa Counties.)

For some, it will mean reexamining those things in the past that ie them to a concept, a place, an attitude.

For the board, it means facing the difficulties of discharging greatly increased responsibilities in an atmosphere of community controversy.

"Community controversy" it has been, since Livermore doctors and residents (especially those who donated money to built the Livermore hospital in 1959) realized a few months ago that VMH directors pre indeed proceeding with the plan outlined in 1971.

Local residents, most of whom prefer to remain anonymous, have raised a number of searching questions about VMH's role in the Valley's health planning. Here are some of the questions, with answers from VMH administrator Tom Andrews or from the text of the Gorseline Report commissioned by the VMH board.

What is Valley Memorial Hospital's role in local medicine?

Valley Memorial defines its "market" or "service area" as stretching south past Sunol to the Alameda County southern boundary; east to the San Joaquin County line; north to the Contra Costa County line; beyond the Contra Costa boundary into San Ramon as far as Crow Canyon Road; and west beyond Interstate 680 to the hills.

The hospital board feels the population of this area is best served by a unified set of health services. When an outside medical organization wanted to build a 99 - bed hospital in Pleasanton in 1971, the VMH board agreed it would be better to have complementary medical services than competing ones if two hospitals were needed in the area.

In addition to hospitals, VMH operates laboratories within the hospital, within the new San Ramon - Dublin Family Health Care Center, and in Pleasanton.

The Gorseline Report also outlines three additional family health care centers (they function like doctor's offices but have longer hours and more specialized services) to help relieve the current doctor shortage which induces many residents to go to Hayward, Walnut Creek and other cities for treatment. The next family health care center is supposed to go into Pleasanton on the new hospital site when it is acquired. Next will be a unit in Livprmor adjacent to VMH and last, a unit in Sunol.

Built into the family health care center plan is the idea that nw doctors working there will build up a practice, hang out a shingle in the Valley, and provide a convenient alternative to far - away practitioners and out - of - town hospitals.

Who needs two hospitals? Valley Memorial isn't even full yet.

According to Andrews, "We could have a line stretching all around the block tomorrow" if VMH ran its business a little differently.

There are a number of services that keep a patient in a hospital bed far longer than the average 4.7 - day stay now recorded at VMH.

These include elective neurosurgery, thoracic (chest) and vascular (vein) surgery of course, new specialists would have to be recruited for those services.

Valley Memorial is now concentrating on simpler or shorter - term operations because their surgical areas are pushing capacity. (Consistently under - used is maternity, which was planned in the days before zero population growth, economic troubles and reliable contraception slashed the birth rate.)

In addition, when a second hospital is built, extended care can be offered. Andrews explained in a case such as a broken hip, the first four days after the accident are considered "acute care," demanding peak performance from skilled medical staff. Then, as the patient's condition stabilizes, he's ready for three weeks of "extended care," still in a hospital but without all the hospital's staff and facilities needed.

It would save patients money to be in a unit designed just for that contingency, and VMH could offer it when the acute care pressure was off its 110 beds, said the administrator.

Another service that would fill a lot of beds and is badly needed in the Valley is a psychiatric wing. VMH planners envision it as a place, not for dangerous or violent patients, nor for the seriously ill who need to be institutionalized, but for depressed or upset patients who may have tried to commit suicide and who need rest and observation, and probably medication, for a few days.

The Gorseline plan originally set the opening of a second hospital at 1975. According to their estimates, the Valley's population at that time could support a second, 150 - bed hospital. The population curve has gone up almost as predicted, which leads VMH planners to believe the plan is still feasible although opening day has been moved up to 1979.

Finally, there is the VMH thrust to attract new doctors to the Valley in hopes they will shunt their patients to one of the two Valley hospitals when the time comes for an operation, tests, or a new baby.

Will Livermore still have a hospital after the Plasanton medical center opens in 1979?

Livermore will almost assuredly have a fully equipped, 24 - hour emergency room. Livermore will probably also be the place for extended care unit and the psychiatric unit.

Livermore may not be where obstetrics and pediatrics are located because Pleasanton is more centrally placed, and planners don't want to duplicate specialized services if they can avoid it.

Operations will still probably be performed at both hospitals. The intensive coronary care unit will go into one facility or Ahe other but not both. The whole question of what services will go where is being studied by a committee of citizens and professionals on the basis of patipnt accessibility, operating costs, scope of services, construction costs and doctor access.

Why the Pleasanton location?

According to the Gorseline study, the new hospital should be within three minutes' driving time of the Interstate 680-580 interchange. They arrived at that figure after spending many hours driving cars from one part of the Valley to another and timing it. The Santa Rita Road site will be no more than 15 minutes from the farthest corner of the service area.

Who will pay for the new hospital?

According to Andrews, one of five options for financing would pay the $12 million cost primarily from a $10 million loan which will be repaid out of hospital income, and $2 million in donations and grants. (The $12 million prediction is based on expected inflation by 1978 - 9 when construction will be taking place.)

If a national health insurance program comes through by then (Andrews predicts it will), the federal government will probably provide funds to complete the hospital.

What if Geldertown, that proposed community of 50,000 north of Livermore, is built?

The VMH master plan is very flexible: Valley Memorial could be redesigned to suit the needs of the new East Valley population, Andrews promises.

Car safety checkups to begin

Highway Patrol automobile inspectors will begin Saturday to concentrate their safety checks on older cars which are more likely to have mechanical defects, Commissioner Dan Lanza announced.

Drivers of 1973, 1974 and 1975 cars will be waved through the roadside inspection lanes, Lanza said, unless they request an inspection, or unless the cars display obvious defects.

Heretofore passenger vehicle inspection crews have taken cars off the road completely at random and without respect to age or apparent condition.

"We are unlikely to be able to expand the force we now have assigned to vehicle inspection," Lanza said, "so we have to concentrate our efforts where the problem is.

Lanza said that a recent sampling showed that of 290 late model cars checked in inspection lanes, only one had a safety - related mechanical defect, while 290 older vehicles produced a total of 91. He added that the number of mechanical defects appears to double with each year of a car's age for the first six years.

This selective method will be much more cost - effective," Lanza spid, "since it costs us five dollars to inspect a car, whether we find anything wrong with it or not.

"In the test sample, it cost us $1450 to check 290 new cars and find one defect. It cost us the same $1450 to check the old cars and find 91 defects — a cost of $16 each.

"We will be inspecting the same number of cars, about 1.5 million a year statewide, but we will be getting many more unsafe cars corrected.

Pleasanton school board

Test results favorable

PLEASANTON — The cost for having a computer figure the complex schedules for bus runs to and from Pleasanton schools turned out to be $13,000.

Only thing is, due to the inexperience of persons putting information into the computer, the Pleasanton school district finally had to place the schedules in the newspaper to insure their getting to district students.

Bulk of the cost, according to Doug Rose, Assistant Superintendent for Business Services, was the $12,000 which went to Educational Coordinates, Inc., which setup the new method for bus scheduling.

Mike Ananos, district Director of Transportation, told Pleasanton Elementary School District trustees Wednesday night that the prime advantage of feeding scheduling information into a computer is the time factor. He said the old by-hand method took three weeks.

Gloria Jones, Director of Pupil Personnel Services for the district, reported on the state testing program. She said that second graders scored at the 80th percentile, well within the predicted range of 74 to 89 percent. The percentile level means that Pleasanton second graders tested are reading at a higher level than 80 per cent of all other students tested in the state.

Sixth graders tested in language arts achieved an 83rd percentile mark. They tested out at the 86th percentile in spelling and 83rd percentile in mathematics.

Score ranges are determined by class size, mobility of pupils and characteristics of the community in which they go to school.

In other business, the three board members present okayed a television contract with the Alameda County Department of Schools. Total cost for the fiscal year would be $5,300, or about a dollar per student.

Valley man sentenced for rape, robbery

Alameda County Bureau

OAKLAND — Darryl Eugene Brown, the 18-year-old Pleasanton man convicted of rape, burglary and robbery of a 31-year-old Pleasanton woman, was sentenced to a minimum of six months imprisonment Thursday morning.

Alameda County Superior Court Judge Lionel J. Wilson pronounced the sentence citing a penal code provision for a minimum sentence of six months for offenders under the age of 23.

Brown will be sent to Vacaville medical facility before officials determine if the Pleasanton man should be assigned to another correctional facility. At that time they will determine when he will be eligible for parole and the length of his sentence.

Brown suffered a broken arm while on trial in early December on charges he committed rape, robbery and burglary on Sept. 15.

Mori at special briefing on legislative priorities

Pleasanton Mayor Floyd Mori attended a special briefing for northern California Mayors held this week by Governor Edmund G. Brown, Jr.

Governor Brown, who came straight from his Sacramento inauguration, spoke to the mayors regarding his legislation priorities and invited the mayors to take full advantage of his open - door policy.

Mori said he was pleased with the priorities set by the new Governor. "The governor emphasized the economic nature of the problems faced by our state, and these are the kinds of problems that I feel are important for the Legislature to begin work on immediately," he said. Mori also felt the governor's position on controlled growth and the barriers that the entrangled state agency criteria system present to local governments was very much in tune with Pleasanton's needs.

The governor stated his fear of the exclusionary effects of no growth and said that there must be a balance of economic needs and environmental quality.

27 highway patrolwomen to graduate next week

SACRAMENTO — Twenty seven women California Highway Patrol officers will be graduated from the police academy Jan. 16 as the first female officers enter the patrol ranks.

The 27 are the survivors of the original 40 member class begun Sept. 30 in a pilot project designed to determine the effectivenss of women officers.

The women were trained beside a group of 40 men. Thirty of the male group will be graduated Thursday.

The new officers will report to their assignments Jan. 28.

Assignments will be made at several Southern California locations as well as San Francisco.

Retiring CHP Chief Walter Pudinski said when training began the introduction of women into the ranks was "one of the most significant events in the department's 47-year history."

CHP officials in inaugurating the program were openly optimistic about the ability of many women to pass the rigorous training but expressed concern over women's ability to "command presence."

Mary Mcallister

JEAN McKENNA'S STORY and sketch of Dona Maria de Bernal y Kottinger in last Sunday's Lifestyle section of The Times drew very favorable comment. It was the first in a series of vignettes we will be running on noteworthy women in valley history each Sunday through 1975 — our way of tying in with International Women's Year, so proclaimed by the United Nations.

Much of valley history has gone unrecorded, but particularly the part women played in it, for good or ill. Ergo, Jean's intensive research involves reading every word she can find on the subject, then spending hours searching out longtime valley citizens and probing their memories — looking for a special incident they recall, or an anecdote passed down in the family from one generation to the next. If you have such recollections to share, or know someone who does, Jean would appreciate a phone call from you (462-4160). And if you missed her first narrative about how the young Maria Bernal Kottinger distracted a bandit from his intended prey by feeding him, and then dancing for him, pick up this Sunday's Times for the second in our series. You may want to clip and save the articles, since much of the information is being printed for the first time.

IS THE WHOLE WORLD off the beam, or does our California Highway Patrol just have an extremely sensitive eye? After being handed citations twice in a row for having headlights out of adjustment, once for the dealer whose new automobile I'd borrowed, and three weeks later in my own new car, I checked around. Sure enough, most folks carrying the little yellow notice from the checkout line said yes, indeed, that's what it was for. Not too surprising on older cars, perhaps, but just out of the showroom? Alas we are mere pawns between the overseers of our highway safety, and the service department!

★ ★ ★

GEORGINA DuGAY OF OAKLAND, who's just into her ninety-first year, enjoyed three "firsts" on Christmas Day, thanks to a valley couple: Her first trip on the San Joaquin River, her first on the Sacramento River, and then a duck dinner. Berniece and Frank (H.D.) Francis hosted Mrs. DuGay and also 85-year-old Palmer Frederickson, to the river trip in their newly purchased 31-foot Chriscraft, then to a sumptuous feast at their Livermore home. It was a day they'll all fondly remember.

The two women first met on the Mills College campus back in the early '50's after Berniece modeled a beautiful wedding gown that had been worn by Georgina's mother, an 1871 Mills graduate.

"I so admired it I asked her for the privilege of wearing it if I ever decided to get married," Berniece relates. The older woman happily consented. "So when Frank and I became engaged, she was the second person I called!

★ ★ ★

IT WAS AT JOHN AND EDITH MARSHALL'S champagne house tour Sunday to benefit John Edmands' bid to be King of the Mardi Gras and add to funds for community projects that Berniece Francis recalled the cordial relationship. Among the many there admiring the beautiful holiday decorations Edith had created in every room were two wellknown and most charming Pleasantonites, Mrs. Bessie Ambler and Mrs. Olga Collier, and their sister, Mrs. Beatrice Rizzo, who drove in from Oakland for the occasion.

To point up the Pleasanton Junior Women's Club intent that the Mardi Gras not be a popularity contest but competition aimed at raising the greatest amount of money possible for worthy projects, the candidates have been attending each other's activities. Chatting in the cozy Marshall kitchen Sunday, refreshments at hand, Julie Dunham and Portia Wade, both Queen candidates, were overheard lavishly praising the Junior Women for their aggressive efforts to improve the community.

Profits from this year's Mardi Gras Ball and related events are designated for Pleasanton Youth Incorporated, Pleasanton Emergency Relief Fund, and the Amador High School Auditorium. Tickets go on sale Jan. 13 and as usual the Ball at Castlewood Country Club is expected to be a sellout.

SPEAKING OF PEOPLE doing nice things, let's not forget the Carol Jean Dancers in Livermore. During the holidays the young troupers put a lot of heart, time and talent in an even dozen shows, performing at convalescent hospitals and retirement homes. Nice going.

★ ★ ★

I just can't sign off without commending Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, Republican of La Canada, the lone California legislator who is refusing to run up our tax expenses by leasing a car. He'll help to keep costs down by getting one from the pool when he needs it. Thank you, Mr. Lanterman. Anyone else out there??

The wheel is spinning, spinning

A fun - filled evening is promised tonight at Castlewood Country Club where Monte Carlo Night, a shared evening for all six Mardi Gras candidates, gets underway at 8 o'clock. ## Where to spend that federal loot

In the next few weeks local governments will be faced with the delightful problem of how to spend a new windfall of federal dollars. We should not allow our delight to blur the image of tough municipal times ahead, and the responsibility local agencies have to stretch every available dime.

In the City of Pleasanton alone there is a long laundry list of high - priority and nearly - completed projects that cry out for attention, but that right now have little promise of being completed because of the community's dollar pinch. The many additions promised, or started, within Amador Community Park; the completion of that 105 - acre recreation park on Hopyard Road; a final decision on the scope and use of a new crafts building; and turfing for a dozen recreation and neighborhood parks throughout the community. These are but a few of the luxuries Pleasanton could justify, if we but had the cash.

There are other less glamorous needs also, but still of immediate concern. Chief among these perhaps is that overpass spanning Route 680, and linking the east and west portions of a city divided. It is time the council took a hard, urgent look at that project, and stopped tieing a vital city road system to a promised regional retail center that is in our distant future.

The idea of a series of "public hearings" designed to attract citizen input on the "best use of those federal dollars" is commendable, and certainly democratic. But such gatherings usually attract vested groups — no matter how worthy — which look to their particular priority on the roster of local needs and activities. The city has found itself trapped before as a result of these pressure - packed sessions.

The council is elected by all of the people, charged with the responsibility for looking at the total community, and even keeping their collective cool while the rest of us are permitted the luxury of bleating for this and that special consideration. There is the further thought that these "Housing and Community Development" funds are no federal windfall at all, but really only a return of the money we taxpayers send to Washington in unlimited quantities, and now look to some small return on that investment at the level where we might feel the most benefit, or even the most relief from other tax burdens.

That is the context in which the city council should view distribution of those "new" dollars.

"The party is over"

The tribute we pay

The Community Development Awards are a "new Pleasanton tradition" that was added to the local roster a dozen years ago, and have since gained their own particular stature in the annual listing of home - town events.

It is not new for Pleasantonites to pay tribute to those who have served us well, in one field or another. It is however fitting that such honors be spread across the total community spectrum, and then pulled together for one collective salute. This makes the recognition particularly sweet for the honoree; it also gives more of us an opportunity to share in the labor and sacrifice of others who might be working outside our private sphere of community interest.

The 1974 Community Development Awards will be given next Friday evening, at a Castlewood dinner gathering. Perhaps you would like to be among the 300 Pleasantonites who plan to be on hand. Tickets are available from the Chamber of Commerce on Neal Street. But you had best telephone your reservation today (846 - 5858); the deadline is at hand.

No time to lose

The appeal of the historic Serrano school financing case is going directly to the California Supreme Court.

A wire service report out of Southern California Wednesday stated the high court has decided to hear an appeal of a decision rendered in the Los Angeles County Superior Court.

Basis for the Serrano case comes from the backwater San Gabriel Valley community of Baldwin Park. From it evolved, in 1971, a state Supreme Court ruling that the school financing system was unconstitutional because the amount spent on each pupil was tied to the property tax.

Therefore, wealthier school districts had more money to spend on education.

Anyone familiar with the community of Baldwin Park will know that the district is quite "poor". It also has a sizable minority enrollment. Whether the one always follows the other is an interesting question that we'll have to explore in some future editorial page column.

The court, in its '71 ruling, said that smaller amounts of money available in poorer districts constitutes discrimination.

The case was sent back to trial before Judge Bernard Jefferson of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, who found evidence that financial discrimination in fact existed in California education. It is this case, in which the 1980 restructuring deadline was set, that is being appealed to the state Supreme Court.

The report via the wire out of the southland states that the state's highest court has decided to hear an appeal that normally would first pass through the State Court of Appeal before reaching the high court.

John McDermott, an attorney for the Western Center on Law and Poverty, who represents the plaintiffs, says the rarely used procedure is intended to speed-up a final decision in the financing case by as much as two years.

Further, the report says it is unlikely the legislature will act until the Supreme Court acts on the appeal.

If this is what it takes to get a decisive action out of our legislature on such a critical edict, then we applaud the speed-up.

In the current period of critical financing, our schools cannot afford the time that would be taken if the appeal was taken back through a Court of Appeals, thence to the high court and then on to the legislature.

FOCUS/Faculty Council

New panel forms

Further groundwork was accomplished Thursday for the establisment of a Faculty Council for the Amador and Pleasanton school districts.

The council idea is a major step in the overall concept of participative management. The latter was instituted in the district by former superintendent Rudy Gatti and is now being shepherded by Dr. Bruce Newlin, the present superintendent.

It was Newlin's belief and background with this concept that brought him to the forefront when a new chief administrator was being sought last summer.

There is no similar group (to a Faculty Council) now existent in the district. Newlin noted that the former Superintendent/Teacher Advisory Council (STAC), which could be construed as having been a duplicate to any faculty panel, "didn't really serve the purposes for which the Faculty Council is aimed at."

The forming council, which is expected to have its first meeting before the end of the month, will be composed of Newlin, Director of Elementary Education Carl Krause, Director of Secondary Education Neil Sweeney and teachers representatives from every school in the districts . . .on an approximate one rep for every 15 teachers.

Thus, if any school has 30 or so faculty members, it will have two representatives on the council.

The teachers will elect their chairman. At present, a steering committee charged with working up guidelines for the council is chaired by John Ogden of the Amador Valley High School faculty. The sub-panel has been meeting for two months to establish ground rules and plot a course for the total committee.

Teachers at each school will elect their representatives. Newlin indicated that these reps will indeed be classroom teachers and not vice-principals or principals.

Newlin is encouraging all faculties to review the guidelines being established by the steering committee and to "participate as a representative to the council."

Newlin has already suggested what directions the council could take initially, noting a need for discussion and action on 1)daily schedules and transportation, 2) articulation and grading requirements, 3) evaluation programs, 4) testing and assessment programs, and 5) procedures for developing and maintaining two-way communication. "There are others," Newlin adds, "but these will do as a start."

Newlin also assures that this council, though it will go into budgeting and staffing problems, will steer clear of any bartering on the subject of teacher salaries.

"As a part of the participative management plan it is my intention to delegate as much of the decision making responsibility relating to the allocation and use of resources to the building level," Newlin states. "The district budget will be a summary of individual school budgets. Each school is to have a budget advisory committee, it could be the whole staff, that will develop that school's budget," continues Newlin. "A district budget advisory committee will consist of representatives from each school's committee and will deal primarily with allocation procedures."

As presented by Newlin, the function of the Faculty Council should be a positive force that will ultimately benefit each and every student in the district.

It is hoped that each teacher that sits on the council will constantly keep the interests of his or her students in mind when deliberating the diverse topics to come before them.

round the town

So you chickened out on the big gold buy, but there's still that pioneer splinter left in the old bones — a desire to strike out for one big haul. Then head to Castlewood, my friends, and join in the biggest gambling venture since John Kottinger decided to cut up his ranch into residential lots, and named the whole blessed place "Pleasanton."

It's Monte Carlo Night at the Mardi Gras, or Mardi Gras Night at Monte Carlo, if you prefer. Either way, it's a swinging affair. Fortunately, as with most big ventures these days, the whole thing is done with play money. Actually, the money YOU spend is the phony USA stuff; the cash you get in return is genuine Mickey Mouse.

Somehow, the Treasury people view all this as being legal, although Mickey Mouse might object to an unfair exchange. Whatever profit is earned goes direct to local charities, the ones named by the Pleasanton Junior Women as targets of this year's total Mardi Gras thing: Furnishing the new Youth Center, cash base for the Pleasanton Welfare Council's Emergency Fund, and completing the Amador Auditorium to full community use.

So let yourself go. Go to the Monte Carlo Night at Castlewood, tonight. Bring money. Take home a pile of non - negotiable loot. Given the state of the economy, it's a better investment than cash.

* * *

If gambling for fun isn't your thing, then maybe it's time you treated yourself to a good movie. (You will recall that this reporter has lately become an authority on the silver screen.) The mind - joggling productions they turn out these days deserve to be rapped; but then again, when Hollywood does do something that's entertaining, it warrants a plug.

"Airport" is at the Vine Theatre these days, and if you like your thrills with every gulp of popcorn, then here's something on the old Buck Rogers theme. And NOBODY ever scared the helloutofus like old Buck. If your tastes run less to crippled jets and more to folks who sing and dance their way through life's perils, then "Entertainment" at the Amador Theatre is for you. Good family fun, too.

It's so rare we get two shows on the local screens in a single week that deserve plaudits, that this roving critic just had to toss in a plug. You probably won't read another movie review in this column until 1976. So enjoy.

If Danville is your beat, you won't get to go to the show at all. Maybe never again. The Village Theatre has been closed since Dec. 31, and report from that hamlet is that the owners are now contemplating an apartment complex to replace the barn - like show house. Which is a shame, I guess.

Many's the night we used to trek over to Danville, in our more active show - going days, to sit on those awful seats, breathe that terrible air, and watch those delightful artsy shows. It was all part of the scene. Real atmosphere.

Apparently not enough folks appreciate a genuine run - down show palace when one is close at hand. So the Village Theatre is dark, its doors shut tight, perhaps forever. It's the last showing of "The Last Picture Show." Coming next — "The Apartment"?

Support your local movie house. Especially when they import something that's really entertaining, like a Tom Mix or Buck Jones western. If we didn't have a local show house, parents would be petitioning the city council to provide ine, probably at taxpayers' expense. And so it goes

You youngsters will not remember, but downtown Pleasanton once offered no less than TWO movie theaters. One where the cluster of shops next to Christesen's now abides; the other occupying the space now held by Frank's TV and Purity Cleaners. One for English - speaking shows, the other in Spanish. For the local Mexican populace. P-Town was more diversified, in those days.

A half mile down the road, and a few years later, we gained a drive-in theater. Take your pick. Shows in two languages, indoor or fresh air. Given the odor of the Main Street palaces, most of us weaker types were happy to see the outdoor show house arrive. At least if we passed out then, it was the fault of the movie, and not the garlic pusher sitting next to you.

* * *

A visit to those business establishments still brings back memory of the old Mexican movie fare. Only now Emily and George Lopez offer fresh - smelling laundry and sweet - sounding records from their half of the building. Frank Lozano has a corner on stereo sound and color television in his half of the former movie palace. We are happy to report that the Lopez and Lozano latter - day enterprises are doing quite well, thank you.

They are in fact among our favorite people. Emily has been doing for others, her family, her town for more years than this relative newcomer can testify. Never missed a day, that we know of. Never fails to smile, even when there's precious little to be smiling about. Emily has her share of those days, I suspect. But she never lets on. Just keeps on doing her busy thing, day after day after year. Quite a lady.

Frank Lozano must be approaching the 25 - year mark in the television business. Same town, much the same brands. Quite an accomplishment, in today's business climate.

"Had the best December for color television sets this year than any year since I've been here," Frank advised us.

Emily and Frank are among the last of the Main Street vendors of our rural days. It's a nice feeling to know that, even after all that dry cleaning and all those tv sets, the town still supports them, and they can still support their town. Restores our faith in people, or free enterprise, or whatever.

Letters to the editor

Ominous oil

Editor, The Times:

Of all the clouds upon the horizon of the New Year, the most ominous must be that of the oil crisis — now considerably larger than a man's hands, and heralding not the welcome rain predicted by Israel's prophet Elijah to end the famine, but rather a disaster of proportions that it may destroy the economy of the Free World.

Economists may differ in their opinions, but all must agree that unless there is forthright policy designed to solve the problem, democracy itself may not survive. We are told that at the present rate of profit accumulation in the hands of the oil producing countries (OPEC) they could buy out the entire New York stock exchange in only 9.2 years; all American interests overseas in as little as 1.8 years; and all the companies represented on the stock markets of the entire Free World in 15.6 years.

Against this critical threat to the survival of the Free World, we have at best the "Kissinger Plan" calling for a united front of all the oil-consuming nations of the West to bargain with OPEC, and to establish a credit union which would raise 25 billion dollars on world markets as a special fund with which to bail out industrial nations who cannot pay for oil at present prices. The "Kissinger Plan" would require that ailing nations promise to take effective domestic measures to conserve energy.

Critics are quick to point out that it is a stop - gap plan, not a solution; and that OPEC can maintain its prices, or even raise them, by simply reducing output — and in the meantime they have already drained some 90 billions from the Industrial world in 1974, and anticipate a further 100 billions to be siphoned into their hoard in 1975, which can continue until the ultimate day of reckoning with the bankruptcy of Western civilization.

So when the OPEC owns all of the industrialized world presumably they can then adjust the price of oil as they may wish to themselves, and no one will have cause for complaint.

President Truman sent hundreds of thousands of men into Korea — fifty thousand to their deaths; subsequent Presidents sent half a million Americans into Vietnam — again with heavy casualties — in defense of democracy. President Kennedy said in his inaugural address "Let every nation know — that we shall pay any price — bear any burden — support any friend — oppose any foe to ensure the success of liberty".

Are we interested in the success of liberty in the Free World? Or even the survival of democracy in these United States? Or are we in the spell of some ineluctable decree of God, or fate.

J.A. Duff

City criticized

Editor, The Time:

How come the city will help the Crosswinds restaurant, but with its underpass project it forced Taco Bell and El Pepe out of business!

Why didn't the city lend a helping hand to these small business people!

Now, the Purity Cleaners is suffering loss of business due to stupid underpass project! Also — we hear thru the grapevine that Parker's Restaurant is on the skids due to the underpass project! How come the Crosswinds gets help?

The wheels of justice

Sometimes it just makes you wonder.

Dr. James Wrede of Sunol, who offered a cottage in his back yard as a temporary refuge for a family burned out of their home, has finally gotten his reward for that act of kindness — he has to burn down the cottage.

The legal ins-and-outs of this affair are literally amazing. The Alameda County Building Department, with an excess of zeal that only a mostly useless bureaucracy can muster, actually arrested Wrede one weekend and tossed jim in jail for his heinous crime of helping out his fellow man.

The obvious parallel of burglars and auto thieves walking the streets and breaking into homes while the county pursues such criminals as Wrede is too obvious to go into.

The cottage, which sits behind the expansive Wrede home in Sunol, was termed substandard for several reasons, including ceilings that were too low, but it was adequately heated and lighted and served as a temporary shelter for a local family down on their luck.

After several warnings (with attempts by the Wredes to rectify the violations), the county issued a warrant for Wrede and finally arrested him. (Have you ever seen such diligence in pursuing a chronic traffic offender who owes hundreds of dollars in unpaid citations?)

Finally, the Wredes bowed to pressure and the homeless family found another benefactor but that was not enough. The Building Department, apparently having little else to do, determined that the Wredes, now proven lawbreakers, should disconnect the heat and electricity from the cottate to prevent any further use. This the Wredes did.

It was not enough. Finally, and long after we would have thrown in the towel, the Wredes just gave up. They decided to burn the place down.

In keeping with their exemplary attitude throughout, the Wredes are hoping to make the best of a bad situation. The destruction of the little cottage that provided shelter for a family in need will serve as a training exercise for the state Division of Forestry.

However, the county, which seems to ignore the spirit and pursue only the letter of the law, will probably cite the Wredes for polluting the air.

Opening lead—K ♦

By Oswald & James Jacoby

It is a good principle of defensive play to stick to leading the suit you have started with. It is a pretty good general principle but there are times when you must abandon it and try for something better.

West opens the king of diamonds against South's three no-trump contract. South can't afford to win that trick since he must take a club finesse later. West continues with the 10 and again South must duck.

At this point a West with a one-track mind will lead a third diamond. South will win; take and lose the club finesse and watch East suffer, since East won't be able to do anything to get West into the lead.

Before leading that third diamond West must realize that the play is hopeless. Maybe nothing else will be any better, but a shift to the 10 of spades might just be a winner. He should make that shift.

It will be a winner! South will have lost two diamonds and will have to lose two spades and a club later.

WBA's fate: NBA ties or collapse

BY MIKE ZAMPA

Western Basketball Association officials are narrowing the league's future down to this: if the NBA rejects their request for full minor league status, the WBA will fold.

An infusion of players and money is needed to keep the struggling operation afloat the next few years.

Falling ticket sales, and keen competition with European teams for available talent are putting a squeeze on.

Minor league designation could ease the pinch, the owners feel, funneling NBA cutoffs, and NBA dollar subsidies into the six-team league.

WBA officials will take that pitch to the NBA board of govenors Tuesday in Phoenix, site of the NBA All-Star game.

Word is, that if the minor league concept is turned down, the WBA will shut down at the end of this season.

That's why so much emphasis has been placed on the Tuesday conference.

But Dick Vertlieb, general manager of the Golden State Warriors, and chief booster of the WBA, says nothing will be settled at that meeting.

"The NBA is historically slow moving," Vertlieb said yesterday from the Warrior office in San Francisco. "The only thing that's liable to happen at the meeting is that we say 'let's take it to the owners.' And the owners do not move quickly."

WBA president George Putnam will carry the minor league request to the NBA board. Details call for certain west coast NBA teams to take on a WBA club as minor league outlet. Presumably, Vertlieb said, the Tri-Valley Warriors would be tied to Golden State.

The parent teams will assist financially in the operation of the WBA clubs, although Vertlieb couldn't be specific over actual dollar amounts.

More important say WBA people, the parent teams will dispatch their final cuts, the 13th and 14th men on the roster, to the minor league outlet. Perhaps a 12th man will be sent down also, reducing the parent team's roster to 11 people.

WBA owners say this aspect of the proposal is crucial. The caliber of their league will improve, it is hoped, with the addition of NBA draftees. That in turn could spark attendance.

Any player sent to the WBA would be on 24-hour recall back to the parent team.

Vertlieb is boosting the concept as a means of keep tabs on promising castoffs.

"When you cut somebody like a 13th or 14th man, you feel that if he just had the playing time, he might make it. George Johnson is a great example."

Johnson, the Warriors' backup center, is a WBA graduate. He languished on the bench last season while Nate Thurmond wound up his Warrior career. This year however, he has combined with Clifford Ray to give Golden State a formidable new look in the post.

"We have to be a little prejudiced about this because of the example George has set," Vertlieb said.

He also admitted that he will push for WBA minor league status as a money saver for his team.

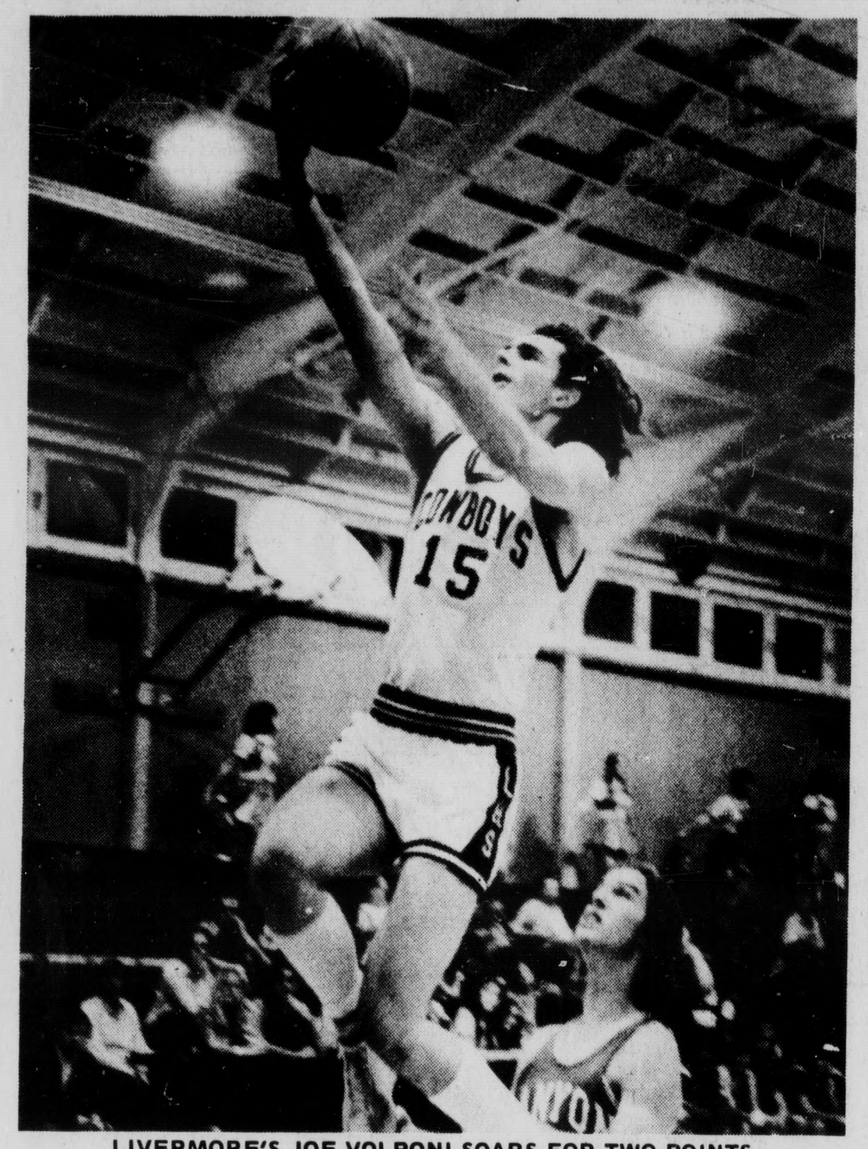
If Golden State could place the 12th man on its roster in the WBA, it would mean a $15,000 savings in travel expenses alone.

The NBA Players Association must approve any such move however, and Vertlieb admitted; "That will not be an easy problem."

The Warriors' boss expects opposition from some NBA bosses who will balk at financial subsidies for the WBA. "No boss likes to spend money, and there are many who will say it will cost us more than we'll save."

Vertlieb wouldn't speculate over the WBA's chances of acceptance, beyond pointing out a decision will be slow coming.

"I've only talked to three or four general managers, and they are totally for it," he said. As for the owners? "Only God talks to owners."



LIVERMORE'S JOE VOLPONI SOARS FOR TWO POINTS
The Cowboys will visit league favorite Amador Valley tonight in the EBAL opener for both teams.

Gaels wait for showdown

BY MIKE ZAMPA

Now comes the tough part of Dublin High's soccer schedule — the arduous six day wait until the Gaels and Livermore play again, probably for the EBAL championship.

"I'm ready right now," gushed Dublin coach Eugene Cassvan yesterday; after the Gaels won a prelude to that showdown, 5-0 over Amador Valley.

It was the final contest for the Gaels until next Thursday when they put their league lead on the line against Livermore.

"Anything can happen, but we're going to do our best," Cassvan said, finding it hard to dwell on the just completed triumph.

"We made some mistakes the first time we played them (a 3-1 Livermore victory) and they were partly my fault. We played too defensive all of the first half and part of the second. And two guys switched positions without telling me. But this time we're out to win. We're out to win it all."

Dublin has the ability, as it proved with a third straight victory this year against once proud Amador. The win provided Dublin a list of credits including:

-three shutouts in the last three games
-11 goals in the last two
-and an 11-1 season's scoring edge over Amador.

In its opening game this year, Dublin required nearly the full hour to score three goals against Amador. It took about 10 minutes yesterday with Mike Laudenbach ramming in two scores 90 seconds apart, and Rich Slade a third, four minutes later. Slade finished with two goals, and Laudenbach, three. It was Laudenbach's best offensive output of the season.

"If he keeps going, he could be a superstar," Cassvan warned.

The Dublin offense perked up in icy weather, playing crisply, missing few opportunities, and never pausing for a breath.

"We're a quick team," Cassvan said. "We try to move fast. When we move, everything moves." As for the defense, working on those three whitewashes, Cassvan said, "It's not just the defense. This is a helluva team."

Everybody participated in the decision, but only two starters, halfback Steve Grant, and fullback Derek Hoxie, played until the final minutes.

Grant was left in for more work. "He was kind of slow making the transition from football," Cassvan explained. "But now he's all fired up."

As for Hoxie, he was assigned to mark Amador's dangerous Brett Boldrini. "Boldrini is the best they've got," according to the Dublin coach. "He was Hoxie's job."

Hoxie, with help from fullbacks John Rodriguez and Steve Duncan, blanketed the Amador attack. The Dons were out-shot, 13-7.

Boldrini's 25-yard blast late in the contest was the only threat to Dublin goal tender Chris Cantalini. He dived at the right goal post to deflect the looping shot.

Dublin's attack was a masterpiece of teamwork.

Laudenbach's third goal of the day was headed directly from Robin Sherwood's corner kick. That made the halftime score 4-0 Gaels.

In th scond half Jff Mulsow launched a free kick from 25 yards that Slade headed past Amador goalie Al Wietecha.

Laudenbach's other scores came on a rebound and a 13-yard straight-on roller while falling to the turf.

A long lead pass by Grant set up Slade at the net for his first score, and Dublin's third of the day.

Brown picks Dons

One heavyweight observer has thrown implied support to Amador Valley High School in the EBAL basketball chase.

The Dons open their league season tonight at home against Livermore.

According to Jim Brown, coach of third rated Oakland Tech, Amador is a likely title prospect.

That's not a revelation. After a 9-3 preseason against some of the state's finest competition, everyone assumes Amador is loaded.

But the predictions carry a ring of truth when backed up by the words of Brown, coach of one of the Bay Area's power houses.

Amador lost a tough game to Tech two weeks ago. The Bulldog coach was asked if the teams might play again this year.

"We could in the TOC," Brown said, "If we get that far. Amador has a good chance because it is really strong in its league."

"Amador is always good," Brown said; "because Skip Mohatt runs a great program there. We always exchange strategies when we get toghether, and I like to listen and take notes."

Amador's losses in the pre-season were to Verbum Dei of Los Angeles, Stagg of Stockton, and Tech. The Dons lost to Verbum Dei by 19, which was the best any opponent has done this year until Tech played within 10 points of the Southern dream team.

The Cowboys are 12th rated in the East Bay with a 10-2

Senior forward Ed St. Clair is enjoying another outstanding year for Livermore, averaging 26 points per game, among the East Bay leaders. The 6-5 corner is also Livermore's rebound leader.

He'll be challenged tonight by an outstanding Amador front line featuring Andy Finn, Jeff Hine and Phil Hansen.

Also tonight, Granada and San Ramon go after their first league victory in Livermore.

Saturday, Monte Vista plays at Dublin.

Five Mats score, SR falls

By STEVE MONA

Five different players got into the scoring act yesterday for Granada High as the Mats skunked the San Ramon Wolves 6-1 at Max Baer Park in Livermore.

Jay Strickland led the Matador scoring barrage as he tallied two goals, both in the second half.

Manzar Igbal, Mike Ramil, Jim Watson and Shannon Estil recorded the other goals for Granada as they upped their East Bay Athletic League record to 3-2-1.

Igbal opened the scoring five minutes into the first half after a wild scramble in front of the San Ramon net.

The ball deflected off of Priewe's arm to Igbal who tapped a 12 yarder into the Wolf net.

Five minutes later Estil launched a long pass to Ramil which the speedy senior turned into a score from 15 yards out.

Watson extended the Mats bulge to 3-0 when he slithered a three yard shot past the sophomore's goal.

Igbal assisted Watson as he launched a corner kick in front of the San Ramon goal, a scene all too famialar to the helpless Priewe.

With 22 minutes expired in the initial half the fleet Estil flew past the San Ramon defense for a breakaway score from 10 yards out.

Ramil's long pass set up the sophomore'sgoal.

San Ramon's lone moment of glory came 15 minutes into the second half.

Wolf right wing Mike Mattoch was pushed from behind by Watson in the penalty area, neccesitating a penalty kick.

Then Strickland took over as he netted two golas in less than two minutes to wrap up the game.

Watson set up Strickland's second score when he lofted a corner kick in front of the San Ramon net.

Strickland headed the ball over Priewe's outstretched arms for the games final goal.

Ford offers wide range in '75 model parade

With the addition of the new Granada and the Elite, Ford Division in 1975 has eight car lines and 34 models, the fullest range of automobiles ever offered by Ford.

Solid state ignition and steel - belted radial - ply tires are standard equipment on all cars for the first time. Fuel conscious motorists can order a fuel monitor warning light on any of the division's cars. Also available is a security lock group that includes a locking gas cap, spare tire lock and (except for Maverick) a locking inside hood release.

GRANADA

Granada, a new automobile with classic styling and five - passenger seating comfort, is about half a ton lighter and two feet shorter than most standard - size cars.

Overall length and weight are 197.7 inches and 3,408 pounds, compared with 223.9-inches and 4,580 pounds of the 1975 standard-size Ford. Granada's dimensions closely resemble those of the Mercedes 280, which is 195.5 inches long and weighs 3,440 pounds. The Granada and Mercedes 280 also have approximately the same interior measurements.

Granada is available in two - door and four - door sedan models in each of two series — a well - equipped basic Granada and a top - of - the - line, luxurious Granada Ghia. Suggested retail price for the two - door sedan is $3,698, and for the Ghia two-door sedan, $4,182.

Standard equipment on the Granada includes a 200 - cubic - inch engine (250 Six standard on Ghia models), three - speed manual transmission, manual front disc brakes, opera windows on the two - door model, and a 19.2-gallon fuel tank to extend driving range.

Granada offers a wide range of optional equipment that includes two V-8 engines, the 302-2V and 351-2V, automatic transmission, and power assists for steering, brakes, windows, driver seat and sunroof.

Ghia models have as standard a vinyl roof, white sidewall tires, unique moldings and paint stripes, a digital clock, cut-pile carpeting, super - soft vinyl seat trim, assist straps and map pockets.

1975 FORD

The standard - size Ford has new front and rear styling, a new two - door pillared hardtop roofline, and a new top - of - the - line series, the LTD Landau.

The new front end on all models has a new hood, fender extensions and a rectangular grille. The LTD Landau and Country Squire models have concealed headlamps. The rear end incorporates a new deck lid designed for easy access to the luggage compartment. New vertical wraparound taillights with integral side marker lights are in the rear - quarter - panel extensions.

Two - door models have a center pillar opera window and a larger quarter window for improved visibility.

Standard features are steel - belted radial - ply tires, solid state ignition, SelectShift Cruise-O-Matic transmission, power steering, power front disc brakes and inside hood release. Luggage compartment capacity is increased from 19.9 cubic feet to 21.9. A 351 - cubic - inch - displacement V-8 engine and 24.3-gallon fuel tank are standard on pillared hardtops. Optional engines are the 400-2V (standard on station wagons) and the 460-4V.

Mustang II's luxury interior carries over from 1974, with standard vinyl bucket seats, cut-pile carpeting on the floor and lower door, full instrumentation with tachometer, fuel, ammeter and temperature gauges, and simulated burled walnut woodtone accents on the instrument panel, shift handle and parking brake.

The Ford Elite enters its first full year in 1975 as one of the hottest cars at Ford dealerships.

It has a luxury - level wide grille with single headlights in pods set back into the hood, twin opera windows, 15-inch wheels, vinyl roof, color - keyed wide bodyside moldings and a distinctive rear end design.

Car light checks can be directed

Many of today's cars have four headlights, cornering lights, seat belts with lights, running lights, ignition switch lights, back-up lights, trunk lights, underhood lights and even lights to tell if the others are working.

Finding the problem when one of them goes out can be exhausting. Walter Koehler, in the current issue of Motor Magazine, suggest some solutions to the problem of trouble shooting automobile lighting systems.

If you are not familiar with a system, refer to the car's wiring diagram and color codes. You can waste a great deal of time chasing a pink wire when you should be following a purple one with yellow stripes. Consult the car maker's shop manual or a book such as Motor Vacuum and Wiring Diagrams.

When tracing lighting problems, follow a logical sequence. First, look in the vicinity of the light for any obvious faults, such as frayed wires in insulation, corrosion at connections or terminals, or interference with metal parts of the car.

If several lights are out, the fault is likely to be a defective switch or wiring harness or blown fuse. If just one light is out, the probable cause is a burned out bulb, so that is the first thing that should be checked. Before installing a new bulb, inspect the socket and remove any corrosion.

In most cars, the headlight circuit is protected by a circuit breaker built into the light switch, while other lighting circuits use fuses. If the headlights flash on and off and you hear a clicking noise, the circuit breaker is operating. Check all wiring and switches in the headlight circuit for a short. Make the necessary repairs and turn on the lights.

Allow them to burn for one minute or more, and if they start to flash on and off the circuit breaker has been damaged by the short. You will then have to replace the light switch assembly.

If one headlight is dim, check to be sure that its housing is fastened securely. A loose mounting may cause a poor ground and excessive resistance. If both headlights are dim, look for high resistance in the dimmer switch of the circuit, or in the dashboard light switch.

When a circuit is protected by fuses, you will get a clue to the trouble by observing how many lights are inoperative. If, for example, all parking and taillights are out, look for a blown fuse in that circuit. The function of each fuse is indicated in the manual and sometimes is shown on the fuse panel as well.

Usually, there is a good reason for a fuse to blow. It doesn't just happen to expire from old age. Before installing a new fuse, check the circuit carefully for bare wires or other possible causes of short circuits.

The turn signals and hazard flashers use the same bulbs, but separate flashers. If turn signals work, but hazard flashers don't, the probable cause is a faulty hazard warning flasher unit.

With most lights on the car, the usual problem is a bulb that won't go on. In the case of stop lights, however, you're almost as likely to encounter a light that won't go off when the brake pedal is released. This condition imposes a constant drain on the battery and shortens bulb life. The usual cause is a stop light switch that requires adjustment or replacement.

If bulbs are burning out quickly and battery corrosion is excessive, the final answer may be in the voltage regulator.

Child safety tips

Every parent knows that children need special protection in a car. But not every parent knows how to provide it.

Babies, according to the National Automobile Club, should be placed in a bassinet that can be strapped securely to the backseat. A backseat safety harness is the best restraining device for a small child. When he weighs 50 pounds or more, he should use an adult seat belt, and when he is 55 inches tall, he should add the shoulder strap.

Be sure you buckle up your child for safety.
